

Mr. Speaker, I applaud the commitment and the efforts of Dr. Morales and his staff in the assistance they provide to the low- and moderate-income families in our community.

The business and professional organizations to which he has belonged, like the honors and awards he has been given are almost beyond counting.

It is a privilege for me to represent the 16th district of New York, where the Bronx Mental Health Center is located. I have witnessed first-hand the exemplary work they are doing for our community and I am deeply impressed.

Dr. Morales is married to Gladys and they have two children, Nilda who is married to Richard and Hugo who is married to Serani. They have three grandchildren, Natasha, Conrad and Clifford.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me and the family of Dr. Hugo Morales in wishing him a Happy 65th Birthday.

CONGRATULATING THE COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF SOCIAL WORK

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 18, 1998

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, on the occasion of the Centennial of the oldest social work training program in the nation, I hereby offer congratulations to the Columbia University School of Social Work which I am proud to say is located in my Congressional District.

Evolving from a summer program organized by the Charity Organization Society in New York, the School of Social Work has a long and distinguished history of pioneering research, informed advocacy, and exceptional professional training.

It is a remarkable accomplishment that social workers have played key roles in every major social reform movement, from settlement houses to labor reform, to the New Deal, to civil rights, and voter registration. Many of the things we take for granted today—Social Security, child labor laws, the minimum wage, the 40-hour work week, Medicare—came about because social workers saw injustice, acted, and inspired others.

Throughout the century, Columbia's faculty, students, and alumni have worked tirelessly to address both the causes and symptoms of our most pressing social problems. National movements, such as the White House Conference on Children and the National Urban League, have emerged from projects undertaken by the School's faculty and administrators in cooperation with professional and community organizations.

The entire nation has benefited from the work of people like Eveline Burns (Social Security); Mitchell I. Ginsberg (Head Start); Richard Cloward (welfare rights and voter registration); Alfred Khan and Sheila B. Kameron (crossnational studies of social services); and David Fanshel (children in foster care).

As your School, and indeed the social work profession, move into their second centuries, they will be challenged to respond to social change, new social problems, family change, and evolving societal commitments. Now more than ever, we will need well-trained and dedicated social workers to work with troubled children and families, organize communities for change, conduct cutting-edge research, administer social programs, and alleviate society's most intractable problems.

It is with appreciation and admiration, that I extend my best wishes to the Columbia University School of Social Work on its Centennial, and look forward to its future activity and achievement.

HONORING MAJOR JAMES
WILLIAM REED

HON. ROBERT W. NEY

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 18, 1998

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Major James William Reed who was a pilot in the Air Force and shot down on July 24, 1970. Until April of 1998, Major Reed was considered an MIA.

Major Reed's family never gave up and worked very hard to find out exactly what happened to him. In 1991, the Air Force did a survey of the crash site and decided to do a complete excavation of the site. The findings concluded that Major Reed did die in the crash.

Major James William Reed was an accomplished pilot and flew over 350 missions before his death. He was also a very kind and unselfish man that he displayed in many ways. Since Major Reed was single, he would volunteer to fly missions so that other men with families would not have to risk their life.

Major James William Reed will be buried with full military honors that he is so deserving. The memorial service will be held on May 24, 1998 where Major Reed's family will finally be able to put him to rest. Mr. Speaker, I ask that my colleagues join me in honoring Major James William Reed who gave so much to his family, friends and country.
